Mostly As - you're a Non-Traditional Bride

You've never been one of those girls who dreamt about a white wedding, and now that your big day is here, you are determined to do it your way. Forget wedding traditions - you're breaking every rule in the book, and having the time of your life as you are doing it! Just remember that in your efforts to have a unique and creative day that's different from everyone else, you can sometimes burn yourself out, or go over budget!

Mostly Bs - you're a Laid-Back Bride

You're so laid-back, you are practically horizontal! All you care about is getting married to your fiancé, and don't see why people make all that fuss about wedding planning. That attitude is fantastic when it comes to keeping things within your budget, or having a relaxed wedding day, but don't get so chilled about everything that you forget to make decisions! Get all your ducks in a row when it comes to the formalities, and then you can have the wedding you like without running into issues on the day.

Mostly Cs - you're an Indecisive Bride

Calm down, bride-to-be! You're putting so much pressure on your big day that you can't make any decisions! Take some time out from your wedding planning so that you can remember that it is supposed to be FUN! Have a spa day with your bridesmaids, or a dinner date with your fiancé. Whichever you choose, ban wedding talk during it. Make a list of your top 5 priorities for your wedding day and focus on them. Everything else can be delegated, or is just not important enough to worry yourself over.

Mostly Ds - you're a Balanced Bride

Congratulations! You are taking wedding planning in your stride, without letting it stress you out too much, or take over your life. Your wedding is important to you, and you know what you want for your big day, but you're happy to compromise when it comes to the little details. After all, the only thing that matters is that you are marrying the love of your life!

Mostly Es - you're a Perfectionist Bride

You've been dreaming of this day for a long time, and now that it is here you want to make sure that everything is picture-perfect. From the Facebook-worthy bridesmaids' dresses to the crystal centrepieces on the tables. However, in your quest for perfection, you can sometimes ruffle feathers when things don't go your way. Relax a little - it is not worth ruining friendships over, and your focus should be on celebrating your love.
